

Four months of pondering, of calculating the possibilities, assessing the sources, examining my father's papers available to me, have convinced me that I have a long and winding path to tread, but that I have to do it anyway, wherever this journey takes me.

With filial awe and great anticipation, I thus begin the difficult trek ahead.

Glendale, California
February 2016