

A rough translation would be as follows:

I dedicate this to you, the Armenian people, you who in your worst of times made your collective fortitude, self-preservation and everlasting endurance your symbol and shield, you who in your darkest hour made your Grand and Eternal Hope your guiding light in your journey to the best of times, you whose historic trek was placed upon the rails of ideology; and to your adolescent son, the Armenian Revolutionary Federation, which inherited your physical, mental and moral essence and bears your struggle.
